THIS series of Poems, having exclusive reference to the scenery of the Hebrides and of the Highland counties of Ross, Inverness, and Moray, and to the Legends and Historical Incidents which lend an additional charm to those beautiful regions, was first published in the year 1845, by the Messrs. Blackwood, of Edinburgh, in a seven-and-sixpenny volume, which has long been out of print. The present edition includes only the first half of the original volume, and two Poems since added. The concluding half has been reprinted under the title of "Ballads and Lyrical Poems," in the cheap series of the Author's Poems now in course of publication by Messrs. Routledge & Co.

FARRINGTON STREET,
January 26, 1857.
