PREFACE.

While revolving in our mind the most suitable title for this little brochure, we were induced to adopt The New Spring and the New Harvest as our title, from the perusal of an article in the Homerton Magazine for Jane, on the "Salvation Army." We do not believe that the New Spring commenced in 1842, simultaneously with the so-called "Tractarian" or "Oxford Movement," for many, thank God, had been reconciled to Holy Church long before that period, not only in England, but in America, in Germany the very cradle of Protestantism, in France, in Scotland—conversions dating almost as far back as the fatal and disastrous rebellion against Christianity in the sixteenth century.

On seeing the first edition of "Rome's Recruits," in the Whitehall Review, and Mr. Shaw's "Roll-Call of Honour," we asked ourselves cui bono?—What possible good can it do to those who at present are extra Excelsiam, extra fidem, merely to print the names alone of those who are "Recruits to Rome"? What is it to the world whether Sam Sykes.
