PREFATORY NOTE.

THIS book consists of chapters from Mr. Gilmour's larger work, entitled 'Among the Mongols.' The aim has been to select such portions as may help to further the causes which led Mr. Gilmour to write the book originally. He is earnestly desirous that his fellow countrymen may get clear and accurate ideas about the Mongols, their habits, way of life, and modes of thought, and thus be able to take a more intelligent and more personal interest in the great work of winning them for Christ.
