A WORD TO THE CHILDREN.

To be read to them by the Teacher.

Children, here is a new book for you. It is a picture book and a story book. You have bright eyes to see the pictures and you have ears to hear the stories. Would you like to learn to read the stories for yourselves? Will you learn to see with your eyes and to remember all that you see and hear? Do you wish to read every story that is in this little book? Do you want to know every word in it, so that when you find the word in papa's newspaper or in mamma's library book, you will know its face, just as well as you know the faces of your little playmates? If you try, you can do this. Then all the words in this book will be your friends and will help you to read other books with other pictures and other stories.

This primer will tell you about Ned, and Kate, and Dot.

and Dan, and other little boys and girls,—about their toys, their games, their homes, and their friends.

Shall we begin to read? Will you try to learn? Will you try to read the first story that you find in this little book? It will tell you about Ned.

THE ARNOLD PRIMER.

This is Ned.

How do you do, Ned?

This is Dot.

How do you do, Dot?

This is Dan.

How do you do, Dan?
