A VOICE FROM THE WEST: A FEW SKETCHES WRITTEN IN VARIOUS MOODS-CULLED FROM THE PAGES OF A WESTERN JOURNAL

Published @ 2017 Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd

ISBN 9780649069781

A Voice from the West: A Few Sketches Written in Various Moods-Culled from the Pages of a Western Journal by I. T. Martin

Except for use in any review, the reproduction or utilisation of this work in whole or in part in any form by any electronic, mechanical or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including xerography, photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, is forbidden without the permission of the publisher, Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd, PO Box 1576 Collingwood, Victoria 3066 Australia.

All rights reserved.

Edited by Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd. Cover @ 2017

This book is sold subject to the condition that it shall not, by way of trade or otherwise, be lent, re-sold, hired out, or otherwise circulated without the publisher's prior consent in any form or binding or cover other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser.

www.triestepublishing.com

I. T. MARTIN

A VOICE FROM THE WEST: A FEW SKETCHES WRITTEN IN VARIOUS MOODS-CULLED FROM THE PAGES OF A WESTERN JOURNAL

Copyrighted, 1908

By I. T. MARTIN

All rights reserved

PREFACE.

The vagrant sketches of this little volume were for the most part, originally published in a western journal, and are reprinted at the request of many of the staunch friends of that paper.

I take this means of expressing my gratitude to Rev. J. W. Gormley of Kansas, for permitting the reproduction of his splendid article on "Home and Government," an eloquent tribute to the Stars and Stripes and a fearless denunciation of divorce.

I. T. M.

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.	Page
Home and Government, Rev. J. W. Gormley	7
CHAPTER II.
On the Mission	53
CHAPTER III.
War Days	65
CHAPTER IV. A Peerless Record	73
CHAPTER V. A Moral Coward	89
CHAPTER VI. The Parochial School	95
CHAPTER VII. The Methodists in Rome	105
CHAPTER VIII. A Catholic Devotion	115
CHAPTER IX. American History	119
CHAPTER X. Merely a Suggestion	125
CHAPTER XI. Rags and Tatters Parade	131

CHAPTER XII. Ministering Angels	PAGE
Ministering Angels	137
CHAPTER XIII. Assumption Day Celebrations	147
CHAPTER XIV. A Modern Apostle	153
CHAPTER XV. Literary Junk	171
CHAPTER XVI. A Society Wedding	189
CHAPTER XVII. Cod Fish Aristocracy	195
CHAPTER XVIII. Woman's Clubs	203
CHAPTER XIX. A Memory	217
CHAPTER XX. The Knights at Cactus Landing	221
CHAPTER XXI. A Dream	225
CHAPTER XXII. A Jack of All Trades	237
CHAPTER XXIII. France and the Vatican	243

CHAPTER I.

HOME AND GOVERNMENT.

HERE is a book older and better than all others; a book which holds an honored place in almost every home in the civilized world; a book which both instructs the mind and comforts the heart; a book which describes the origin of the human race and narrates its history for four thousand years; a book which solves every problem of life, both individual and national; a book to be read with reverence, because it was inspired by the one true God. To this good, this venerable, this blessed, blessed book I appeal, in order that I may show forth authoritatively the dignity and the rights of man: in order that I may prove to you that the Christian home is the unit of civilized society; in order that I may demonstrate to you that the greatness of our government is but the reflected glory of our homes; in order that I may convince you that any theory or practice which would destroy the sanctity of the home is at the same time a danger to that which in all climes men who have hearts adore by the great title of their country. (7)

Behold how eloquently this blessed, blessed book bespeaks the dignity of man. Not in it that earthy doctrine that he is but the chance product of blind physical force, evolved by indefinite process from some protoplasmic cell. Not in it that beastly doctrine that he is of simian ancestry, and that his highest aspirations are after all but brutal instincts. No, no, O God, Thou hast made man and he is the work of Thy hands; Thou hast made him but a little lower than the angels; Thou hast crowned him with honor and glory because Thou hast created him to Thine own image and likeness.

Not by right of evolution from some baser element; not by right of development from some inferior species; but by right of his immortal soul, the Divine image within him, Adam stood erect in the garden of Paradise, the lord of creation, possessed of power to command the elements; the lord of creation, endowed with dominion over the beasts of the earth; the lord of creation, free in it as God Himself; in the very heaven of heavens. Indeed he might acknowledge God or ignore Him, serve Him or disobey Him, love Him or hate Him; for his was absolute freedom of will; his was liberty of thought, of speech, of action,—liberty full and entire.

True, God might and did impose laws upon Adam. Nature too, might and did impose its limitations, but he was still left free to violate the former or transgress the latter. Nor violations nor transgressions such as these, no matter what other