Some Opinions of the Press.

'One likes to fancy how Gilbert White would have welcomed Mr. Knight had they been contemporaries, and of the talks they would have had together. He would have found a man after his own heart—full of pleasant chat, deeply versed in all the latest literature, gifted with a brilliancy of expression such as the old author never aimed at, even supposing he could have attained it.'—Academy.

'Mr. Knight seems to be quite as attentive and sympathetic an observer as the late Mr. Jefferies, and there is much in his essays which is both instructive and eloquent.'—The Globe.

'A charming book on Natural History, beautifully illustrated, and full of delightful reading. Dealing chiefly with bird life, the work also contains much information about the denizens of English lanes, woods and meadows, written in a very pleasing and agreeable style.'—Newcastle Chronicle.

'Mr. Knight has a happy touch in describing the ways of birds and the aspects of the fields, and has a keenness of observation akin to the faculty that was so remarkably developed in the "The Gamekeeper at Home."'—Scotsman.

'Not the least important feature of these studies is to create a love for all the lower forms of life by showing their usefulness in one particular or another. The book is very beautifully illustrated by Mr. E. T. Compton, and also by photogravures of delightful bits of scenery.'—Stockport Advertiser.

'Thanks for the sympathies that ye have shown I
Thanks for each kindly word, each silent token,
That teaches me, when seeming most alone,
Friends are around us, though no word be spoken.

At your warm fireside, when the lamps are lighted,
To have my place reserved among the rest,
