FOREWORD

THE Hawn Course in Public Speaking has taken the speaker through all the technical and theoretical phases of the subject. He has learned the Fundamentals and Elements of Speech in Book One—the use and varieties of Poise, Position and Gesture in Book Two—has analyzed model and Occasion Speeches in Book Three—has mastered the art of preparing his own speeches in Book Four—and has taken up the subject of Voice, English Enunciation and Pronunciation, etc., in Book Five.

Technically he has little more to learn, and the Course might well be considered complete, if it were not for the fact that the price of progress is continuous practice. This sixth and last book of the Course is a collection of modern discourses, which should be read as speeches, not as text. They will broaden and develop any speaker, and spur him to greater accomplishment. They are on modern topics that are uppermost in the minds of men; they give inspiration to the seeker after material for speeches, and at the same time serve as models for similar discourses. These selections have been carefully gleaned from the
