Chapter One

IT WAS THE SIGHT OF her two boys careening from the alley into her back yard that brought Mrs. Helen Farrier up short. She experienced a sudden sinking of the heart. For the first time she was aware that up to now it had been a pleasant day, cool and calm and placid. There weren't many such days in the normal run of Mrs. Farrier's experience with her two sons, Willie and Tom. Willie was ten, now, and Tom eight, and what Mrs. Farrier often had
