PREFACE.

WHEN truth is assailed, its defence becomes a solemn duty, and controversy an unavoidable necessity. In the present day within the Church of England doctrines are promulgated and practices adopted which are as inconsistent with the Articles and formularies of that Church, as they are contrary to the teaching of Holy Scripture. The object of the following Lectures is to demonstrate that two-fold antagonism; and in doing this, not only to expose errors, but to bring out prominently the great truths which they affect. Loyalty to the Church is shown to be equivalent to fidelity to the Word of God: while these errors are proved to be equally traitorous to the one and dishonouring to the other. The Committee of the Manchester Church Association, under whose auspices these Lectures have been delivered, and are now published, think themselves happy in having secured in the carrying out of this design the co-operation of some of the most learned and eminent divines of the Church: they thankfully acknowledge that co-operation, and commend their arguments to the earnest and candid consideration of all faithful Churchmen.

May God's blessing accompany this volume, that it may prove no unworthy nor unsuccessful weapon in the defence of the pure faith, recovered for our Church at the Reformation, and the maintenance of the immutable truth of the living God.
